Sir Harcourt Courtly is lured away from the epicentre of fashionable London by the promise of a rich and beautiful bride, Grace, several decades his junior. Arriving at Oak Hall he marvels at this rural Venus until her charms are eclipsed by her hearty cousin, the foxhunting Lady Gay Spanker. Meanwhile his disguised son turns up in flight from his creditors and fall head over heels for Grace. When Lady Spanker discovers the young couple, she needs little prompting from the visiting chancer Dazzle to lead Sir Harcourt astray.

Starring Simon Russell Beale and Fiona Shaw, this is a live broadcast from the National Theatre.

Nowhere in Africa

Thursday 6 May, 7.30 pm
Tickets: £6 members,
£7.50 non-members,
£5 students

A magnificent Oscar winning epic. A love story spanning two continents. Nowhere in Africa is the extraordinary true story of a Jewish family fleeing Germany in 1938 to a remote farm in Kenya. Adjusting in individual ways to the realities of the present and always conscious of that left behind, the story focuses on a young couple and their daughter as they slowly learn to cherish their new life. The film is based on the best selling autobiographical novel by Stephanie Zweig.

your seats.)

Written and directed by Rikki Beadle-Blair, FIT offers more insight into gay youth issues, sexual identity and the nature of bullying than in any other film that has broached these topics. It's a kind of gritty take on the shiny E4 drama Glee.

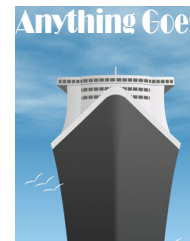

As You Like It
from The Globe Theatre
Tuesday 18 May, 7.30pm
Tickets: £10.00
(concessions £8.00)

'A production of such sweet humour and wit that you find yourself surrendering to it just as Rosalind allows herself to surrender to love'

Tsarina's Slippers
From the Royal Opera House and The Royal Ballet
Thursday 20 May, 7.30pm
Tickets: £10.00
(concessions £8.00)

The Royal Opera and The Royal Ballet come together in a special journey from a snowy Ukrainian picture-book village to the imperial splendour of the court of Catherine the Great. Vakula, the son of the witch Solokha, attempts to woo and win the beautiful but fickle Oxana. It seems hopeless, but when the Devil, a witch, forest sprites and a host of colourful characters are involved, he could be lucky after all! Tchaikovsky's music is packed with showpiece solos, dances and choruses: from grand polonaise to haunting chorus of water sprites to rustic revels – and there's a true Russian flavour with Alexander Polianichko as conductor and several star Russian singers.

Anything Goes
Tuesday 8 - Friday 11 June,
7.30pm
Tickets: £6.00 (concessions £3.00)

The High Spirits Theatre Company present this well-loved musical. With madcap antics aboard an ocean liner bound from New York to London, Billy Crocker is a stowaway in love with heiress Hope Harcourts, who is engaged to another.

Love's Labour's Lost
from The Globe Theatre
Tuesday 15 June, 7.30pm
Tickets: £10.00 (concessions £8.00)

Love's Labour's Lost is a celebration of young love. It's also a festive parade of every weapon in the playwright's comic arsenal from excruciating cross-purposes to silly impersonations.

In this timeless comedy, the King of Navarre persuades three friends to join him in a vow of celibacy so they can concentrate on their studies- what they didn't anticipate was a visit from the beautiful princess of France and her three gorgeous ladies-in-waiting.

A digital screening from the Globe Theatre
